VA Section Chief

VA Section Chief

The Department of Emergency Medicine (DEM) at University of Wisconsin, School of Medicine and Public Health (Madison, WI) is seeking candidates for the position of VA Section Chief. This is an exceptional opportunity for a highly motivated Emergency Medicine Physician (BE/BC) with strong interest in clinical operations and quality improvement. Job responsibilities include leading a collaborative team of emergency department physicians, nurses, and staff to improve the clinical care provided to veterans through process improvement. The Section Chief will act as a liaison between the emergency department and VA hospital administration. They will oversee the department's peer review process, ensure adequate staffing of the emergency department by physicians, and provide clinical insight into the department's clinical protocols. While a track record in graduated administrative responsibilities is preferred, opportunities also exist for more junior faculty.

As part of DEM faculty, the successful applicant will staff upwards of half of his/her clinical shifts at William S. Middleton Memorial Veterans Hospital and half of his/her clinical shifts at University of Wisconsin Hospital & Clinic (UWHC). UWHC is one of only two academic medical centers, and level I Trauma (adult & pediatrics) and Burn Centers, in the state of Wisconsin.

Compensation and benefits are extremely competitive. Inquiries should be accompanied by a curriculum vitae and may be e-mailed or addressed to:
